

RULES OF SALARIES IN THE OLD WORLD

Czar Probably the Richest Monarch Who Has Ap- peared in History.

The Czar is the richest monarch in the world, and probably the richest that has ever lived. His total annual revenue is about $400,000,000, but expenses are proportionally heavy, and after he has paid for the upkeep of his million square miles of cultivated land and forest, as well as the expenses of his mines in Siberia, it would seem that he has none too much.

King Edward receives $250,000, but little more than a fourth of this goes into the privy purse, a stipulated sum which is invariably paid aside for household expenses, salaries, pensions, charities, rewards, etc.

The reigning allows the German Emperor about $650,000. He has also a salary as King of Prussia, which amounts to about $3,000,000. He has great estates and many resources at his disposal, but his expenses are tremendous.

The Emperor of Austria is also King of Hungary, and, therefore, like the German Emperor, draws two salaries. The amount of each, in his case, is nearly $2,500,000.

The King of Italy receives about $250,000 a year, but out of this allowance are paid to the Queen Dowager, to the Duke of Genoa, and to the children of the Duke of Salaparuta.

King Alfonso has an allowance of $1,750,000, and as provision is made for other members of the family outside of this, the sum quoted is practically all his own to spend as he pleases.

Leopold II receives about $750,000, but he has been business instincts, and all the world knows the way in which he augments his salary to gratify his luxurious tastes.

The smallest salary paid by any power to its chief is the $250,000 allowed by Congress to President Roosevelt.

AMERICAN FLOUR IN THE LEVANT.

A New York exporting house writes to the Bureau of Manufactures that it has been successful in making sales of American flour to Beirut and Latakia, but that on account of the increase in the price of wheat it has not been possible to fill many of the orders from Turkey. In the old oil trade the same concern experiences many difficulties in the Levant, because goods shipped by American factories on the spot are secured through samples furnished are of an inferior grade—Exchange.
